Built for Biotechnology and More

In St. Louis — the BioBelt — intellectual horsepower is impressive. Collaboration and shared learning among its experts propels the region to leadership status in biotech, business, healthcare, education, and more. New ideas bubble up from all over the region — world-class universities, major companies, entrepreneurs, and incubators. And as the region expands its cutting-edge research in plant and other biotechnology, we're becoming a magnet for the best of the best in science, IT, and other related industries.

Those who come to St. Louis find a unique sense of community. From the acclaimed revitalization of downtown St. Louis to the fun and inspiring arts scene, from championship sports teams to nationally recognized parks, from noted restaurants to diverse neighborhoods, St. Louis offers an inspiring and affordable quality of life unlike any other.
